Winchester M 1873

A lever-action rifle famous as "the gun that won the West".

It improved on the weaknesses of rifles in the period from 1860 (Henry Rifle) to 1880 (Winchester Rifle) and achieved perfection in its kind. The 1860 Model could not compare with the power of Winchester's first metallic centerfire cartridge used in this gun. 720,000 were manufactured by Winchester, 120 of which were custom-made as one-of-a-kind guns.

Caliber .44-40 (approx. 1 1/4 inches)

Besides more modern rifles like the Japanese Type 38 or the German Mausers, the Winchester M 1873 resembles a toy Winchester. Even still, this gun is very famous.

HAHA...

DON'T BE SURPRISED BY WHAT YOU SEE OUTSIDE...

I WAS SURE PLUTONIUM AND POTETOWN WOULD HAVE LOTS OF CASUALTIES
BUT I DIDN'T THINK PEEPTOWN WOULD BE SO RUINED...

BUT IT LED TO ALL OF
THE INNOCENT DYING AS WELL.

This is Gun Frontier.
A very lively place.
Where a man can die in the blink of an eye.
Where logic is useless.
Where men pull their triggers suddenly, compulsively.
Where before anyone can figure what the fun is all about men are dying left, right and center.
A place where the only law in effect is survival of the fittest.
Yes, this is Gun Frontier.
Jesse James thought fondly of this place
before he died.
Where only real men can swagger about.
